German Holstein Show 2017

At 14th and 15th June 2017 the German Holstein Show will take place in Oldenburg. This biennial show is a highlight for all interested Holstein breeders.

The program of the event will start on Wednesday, 14th June opened by the young breeder's competitions. The young breeder's already carry out their clipping contest the day before and will complete their competition with the showmanship. About 50 young breeders from all German regions are expected to determine their overall Champion in two age classes. Erica Rijnveld (Netherlands) and Luc Sassel (France) will be the judges of this competition.

As highlight of the first day the ring opens at 19:30h for the first class sale "DHV-Genetik 2017". About 30 heifers and calves out of deep German and international cow families, as well as hot genetic with high genomic values and excellent type animals will be offered.

Thursday 15th will start at 09:00h with judging of the young cow classes and election of the Junior Champion. Holsteins and Red Holsteins are judged in parallel in two rings. The Holsteins will be judged by Cord Hormann, Warmsen, the Red Holsteins by Stefan Widmer, Mühlehof/ Switzerland.

Progeny groups are presented at 10:30h. Visitors can make their own picture of the quality of eight Holstein and Red Holstein sires (see table below) by having a look to their daughters in the ring or in the barn.

The show will be continued at 12:00h with the judgement of the mature cow classes. In total 200 cows out of all German breeding areas will be presented in the show rings. At 15:45h, the exciting highlight of the election of the Grand Champion cow will take place.

Further details are published on the DHV website (www.holstein-dhv.de) and on Facebook.
